PREFACE

The area of labour and industrial law is very wide compared to available syllabus in universities for students of law. Available books and manuals on the subject are designed for the practitioners and in most cases they contain much more than what the students need; nor are they available with bare Acts and Rules. This manual of labour and industrial law has been designed with bare Acts and Rules for the students of law and the selection is so made that it comprehends and covers the LL.B. syllabus on labour and industrial law papers prescribed in most of the universities of Bangladesh.

Collection of updated and upto-date legislation on labour and industrial law has all along been problem in Bangladesh as there is no initiative at the Government level to update them on a regular basis. Updating the law on individual initiative is a mammoth task. While preparing this manual care has been taken to collect updated information though lack of institutional assistance and initiative from the Government level might have left our initiative bit behind.

Special thanks go for Laila Sharmin, student of final year LL.B. Dhaka University and my typist Kamrul Hassan for their help in preparing this manual.

I express my heartfelt gratitude to my publisher the CCB Foundation for processing and publishing this edition.
